Clinton Plan To Crack Down On Patriot, Militia, Christian Groups After Election

In a highly secretive memo circulating within the Clinton White House, FBI, DEA, BATF, and the Attorney Generals office, war plans are being devised to mute and rend ineffective Patriotic groups such as Militias and Christian Identity organizations.

While the methods to be employed in this campaign are still under review; the most favored scenario, espoused by administration and law enforcement hard-liners is a massively coordinated sweep of targeted Christian, Patriotic, Militia, racist, and anti-Semitic locations nationwide.

Top Clinton administration officials have long advocated linking the Patriotic movement with White Supremacist and Anti-Semitic groups, realizing the public's perception of categorizing the Patriotic movement with perceived hate groups would ensure public approval, effectively muting Patriotic anti-constitutional cries.

Top FBI, and BATF officials, bitter over the public relations trouncing their departments absorbed after Waco and Ruby Ridge, and miffed at their inability to successfully prosecute the Montana Freeman, are desperate to silence the voice of Militia oriented Patriotism.

The sweep proposal under advisement and study, is one of what has been narrowed down to four pro-formas. The second most favored plan is a wholesale negative media blitz, directed, and once again linking Patriotic groups with so called hate groups.

Confidants have assured Clinton they can expect the full cooperation of most establishment media, especially the Israeli dominated Networks, and major print publications such as NY Times, Time Magazine etc.

Because of the anti-Semitic theme of the public relations campaign, a highly placed administration media personal, acting on strict anonymity, informed Colony News the CIA, with its deep Israeli leadership connection, would also employ their vast press resources in the effort.

Attorney General Janet (murderer) Reno is not privy to these plans, as our source has told us Reno will not be back in the second Clinton Administration due to Parkinson's disease, and administration hard-liners eyeing a top liberal, anti-patriotic prosecutor for the job.

Clinton expects to win re-election handily over the now hapless citizen Bob Dole, the no-longer-interested-I-support-the-Republican Party-Pat Buchanan, and the feeble efforted Perot movement. Recent Times Mirror, NBC/CNN, ABC and CNN polling indicated Clinton with a landslide lead among likely voters in all categories. Surprisingly, Clinton commands a 30% margin over Dole amid Independents, with a 28% lead among women voters.

While the Republicans enjoy a built-in advantage in the Electoral College, entering the election with 168 Electoral Votes by state; Clinton also enters November with an assured 143 Electoral votes. Barring some unforeseen disaster on Clinton's part, he seems sure to capture the Northeast, Western Coastal states, and a majority of the Midwest, resulting in a November election night landslide.

This near certainty of re-election now permits Clinton to forget policy based on politics come 1997, and concentrate on his real lifetime agenda; fully propagating a socialistic liberal One World Order under United Nations auspices.

With the real possibility of Democratic re-control of the House of Representatives and the Senate, Clinton and his globalist backers would surely implement a policy of retribution on conservative Patriotic groups whom have opposed him the past four years. The new Clinton administration will target the 2nd Amendment immediately upon taking office, using new extremist laws passed by the new liberal Congress to disarm America. This legislative effort will mirror the United Nation's Japanese proposal to disarm the citizens of the World, leaving all weapon ownership and usage in the sole hands of Globalist law enforcement.

Utilizing extensive Patriotic group databases provided by Morris Dees, SPLC, and augmented with Treasury, FBI, BATF and DEA files; the new Clinton Administration will have little problem identifying quickly which organizations to descend upon. Once a stronger version of the anti-terrorist legislation is enacted by the new Congress, identifying all Patriotic and Militia organizations as domestically terroristic, the BATF, FBI, and others will gleefully conduct massive nationwide sweeps in retaliation for agency perceived threats since Waco.

Another proposal to be legislated upon in 1997, will be the Clinton Administrations proposal, in conjunction with a host of favoring nations, to ban all private citizen ownership of arms-worldwide. As Colony News has previously mentioned, the U.S. excursions into Somalia, Haiti and Bosnia were but practice sessions for disarming and controlling the public - a practice purposely executed for implementation within the United States of America.

Food Shortage Concerns Many Farmers, Patriots, And Survivalists

By: Marge Zinther

Hardly beknown to many American, due to the establishment Press's policy of omission, a looming severe food shortage could be affecting the U.S., possibly even Worldwide.

The as yet unannounced food crises is already the chief topic of concern for Patriots, survivalists and preparedness groups. John Trochman, of the M.O.M., recently told Colony News the food topic is his leading concern. Earl Dickey, of the New Jersey Militia, also expressed apprehension towards the nation's food supply.

The possible upcoming crises is much more understood and publicly discussed in the West, where farmers and ranchers posses first hand knowledge of the problem.

Although the country's depletion of grain and other commodities is alarming, Clinton Administration officials, along with the press, appear to be more interested in covering-up bad news during an election year, than addressing the problem. Despite extensive coverage of the food crises in The Free American, an Albuquerque, New Mexico based alternative newspaper, massive Internet discussion, and multitudes of Patriotic and Militia newsletters and publications, the vast majority of the American public remains in the dark, with no indication whatsoever of the existence of the problem.

One reason for the governments lack of recognition of the crises may well be that the government itself, contrived the food shortage, thereby beholden the American public to the ever increasing powerful hands of FEMA. Control of a nations food supply, as well as munitions, is a sure method of enslaving that country's population. Roosevelt, during the early '30s', seizing the depression as an instrument of control - perfected exactly this method. Because of a nationwide shortage of food and jobs; Roosevelt was able to enact sweeping Marxist legislative programs presumably to rectify that situation. Sixty years later, we all know the repercussions of Roosevelt's maneuvering.

So serious is the food crises viewed by some, avocation of all Americans to begin a food storage program is becoming a serious issue for many. Supplies of freeze-dried food are exceedingly low, with the cost of these items beginning to skyrocket, due to demand.

James Lloyd, editor of Christian Media, mentions that according to the U.S. Department of Agriculture, this is the first year since WW11 in which there were no emergency food stocks. Agricultural wheat crop loss is so severe in Texas, that Stephen Amosson, of the TX Agricultural Service, Says "it's just a question of how bad the disaster is going to be."

Unseasonably dry weather has had impact for sure, and record high prices for corn and wheat are expected to drastically escalate retail consumer prices. On the other hand, due to dry conditions and other forces, beef is selling at throw-away price levels. So much that the Clinton Administration stepped in to prop-up beef price supports.

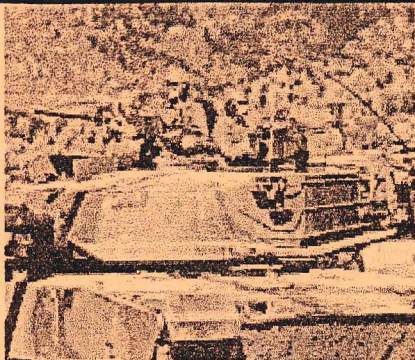

Other factors in play causing the food shortage are the continued diminishing of farms combined with record exports of wheat to foreign countries. Also the Wheat Blight in New Mexico, Arizona and Texas due to the importation of unchecked Mexican grain under NAFTA.

Many foreign countries that were once importers of American food grains, like China, are now exporters. It's apparent, the Worldwide food supply and price system currently in use is as screwed up as the Worldwide monetary supply. Whether the food shortage crises will be temporary, and pass, or become more exacerbated, and directly effect the nation's nutritional health remains to be seen. What is clear is all Americans should prepare.

U.N. Sponsored Foreign Bases On U.S. Soil Alarming!

By: Richard Struthers

Verified reports and sightings of the existence of foreign military bases within the confines of the United States continue to mount. United Nations sponsored joint military exercises have reached an all time high during peacetime. The confirmed existence of a German military base located near Holliman Air Force Base in Southern New Mexico, close to El Paso, Texas, has the attention of many Patriotic and Militia organizations, especially since the base brazenly flies the German Flag over the base.

Earl Dickey, of the NJ Militia, feels there well may be correlation between the location of this base in the extreme Southwest, and widespread Patriotic activity, including the budding Republic of Texas movement. Mr. Dickey feels the base is part of a forward United Nations outpost intended to recapture the Sovereign Nation of Texas should the movement become widespread; delivering the area back to the United States. This sort of multinational, U.N. sponsored action would eliminate the perception of the Clinton government being identified with the problems Yeltsin has experience publicly in dealing with the independence minded Chechen province.

The helicopter crash, and subsequent deaths of 14 marines engaged in yet another United Nations/Clinton sponsored joint military exercise over Camp Legune, NC, has further increased speculation and suspicion. Thirty-five thousand U.S. Marines, and fifteen thousand British troops are engaged in what has been described by U.S. Chief-of-Staff General Shali-whatever, as the largest joint military exercise on U.S. soil since World War II. These statements and exercises are all the more baffling considering there is no world war in progress.

During the middle of May, spotted outside a National Guard facility in Central New Jersey, was the longest flatbed train of olive green military vehicles this correspondent had ever witnessed. The train convoy consisted of multitudes' of jeeps, hum-vees, and Bradleys. Even more surprised was this correspondent, when several days later, as I was scanning the same area, two army trucks towing attached howitzers drove right me, entering the same armory! What in the world howitzers were being utilized for by the NJ National Guard, (whose state duties consist of emergency disaster assistance and aiding in local civil disturbances, if there are any) is beyond explanation. Are the howitzers going to be deployed to quell civil disturbances? We can only wonder.

Are the foreign bases precursors to the United Nations' establishing their blue-helmeted international police force in America? U.N. peacekeeping and policing forces are already located in almost every nation on the planet - but one - until now. With the silent introduction of foreign bases within the Continental United States; it could reasonably be assumed U.N. helmets and patches will appear next.

Giving credence to this potential is the governments insistence on U.S. troops complying with orders to wear the U.N. symbol on their uniforms, and to accustom themselves to serving the flag and missions of the United Nations. This insistence all the more underscores the importance of Michael New's argument that his mission, as a soldier in the United States Military, is to honor, protect and serve the Constitution of the U.S. - not the U.N.

Another Patriotic Militia leader, Leroy Krenshaw, of the Massachusetts Militia, informs Colony News of a new foreign military base also located in the Southwest. This base, again of German nationality according to Mr. Krenshaw, is situated in Arizona.

Mr. Krenshaw also explores the coincidence between the reunification of Germany, and its incorporation of former East German military officers into the resurrection of Germany into a world power once again. Mr. Krenshaw links Clinton, who's father was a Rockefeller, to the Rothchilds, thereby supplying reason for Clinton's strong German military and governmental ties.

The Mass. Militia Leader, who recently made Morris Dees's anti-government database list as a Militia sympathizer, wonders if the sodomizing Dees ever checked to find out that he is a black man. This fact is noteworthy only in that Dees refers to all Patriots as anti-Semitic, white supremacist race hate groups. Maybe if Dees stopped sodomizing young boys while his wife was forced to observe long enough, he would notice Patriots consist of all races, nationalities and religions.

Will it be long before NYPD and LAPD will be replaced by UNPD?

Virginia Citizens Militia Needs Lesson In Meaning Of "Freedom"

By: Patrick Dublin

Recently May's Edition of Colony News was mailed to offices of the Virginia Citizens Militia, along with our usual request for pertinent information regarding the Militias concerns and progress that would be of interest to Colony News' nationwide readers. The response we received was as follows:

I would be more than happy to submit an article but I'm very troubled about your advertisement on page 5 of the May issue. The Virginia Citizens Militia is open to all Americans, Black, White, Asian, Jew, and Gentile. If you are not racist you are certainly giving ammo to the enemy who would argue that you are!!

I, as editor of Colony News believe the Virginia Citizens Militia has a huge problem understanding the Patriotic cause of Freedom.

The ad referred to was submitted to Colony News by the Destiny Research Foundation, of Sales, OH. The company's advertisement was for a publication titled The Lost Heritage, The Cultural History Of The Caucasian Race.

We at Colony News are not the judge of content submitted by readers or advertisers! We at Colony News do not have to agree with all articles, reader responses, or advertisements.

But - The Patriotic battle for Freedom does not give us the right to judge who's opinion or product is politically correct!!

How can an organization such as the Virginia Militia advocate freedom on one hand - then insist on suppression of items not suitable for their beliefs? This is the very same politically correct, selective press repression practiced every day by the establishment media.

Has the Patriotic movement in Virginia reached the point of replacing one denounced objectionable press with the sole ideas of another? If this is what freedom means in Virginia, these folks need to reexamine their place within the Patriotic movement.

As to the misguided Donald R. Doyle, Information Officer for the Virginia Militia, this editor holds personal conversations with respected Militia leaders and representative throughout the country, and yes Mr. Doyle, some of these respected Patriots are indeed black by race.

Mr. Leroy Krenshaw, of the Massachusetts Militia, a well respected black Patriot, has conversed and submitted information to this editor numerous times. Mr. Krenshaw, to his credit, understands what freedom is really about.

If the Militia movement in Virginia is about imposing selective idealism on individuals - I suggest your cause is already lost.

Colony News presents articles on the progressive grassroots activity of Militias nationwide. Many of our readers have commented to us these articles have had a positive effect on their view of Militias. Respected and knowledgeable Militia leaders such as John Trochman of the Montana Militia, General Van Huizen of the Central Michigan Militia, Commander Edward Havran of the Stark County Unit of the Ohio Unorganized Militia, Denny Rambo and Earl Dickey of the New Jersey Militia, and the aforementioned Mass. Militia leader Leroy Krenshaw have all contributed articles to Colony News. All have also expressed their satisfaction with the issues presented. Not one of these Patriotic Militia leaders, as well as others, have ever suggested censoring the content of Colony News.

Maybe Mr. Doyle was expressing opinions of a personal nature in his letter. It is possible the membership of the Virginia Citizens Militia value the 'Alternative Press' more than their Informational Officer does. These problems are for Virginians to work out. But if Mr. Doyle's views are predominate within this Militia - Virginia would be well served without one!

Finally, we at Colony News would like to inform the Virginia Militia our readers are all appreciated and welcome, whether Black, White, Asian, Jew, or Gentile.

Wall Street Destroying Main Street

By: Richard Struthers

Most Americans have heard the refrain more than enough by now; first CNBC, the Networks, or the Wall St. Journal report Company xyz is downsizing, -which is the new terminology for permanent employee firings - to be quickly followed by a Wall Street financial report indicating the company's stock(paper net worth) has risen 2 points, or whatever the number is.

This sort of financial news is repeated all too often. Usually the reporter quickly dismisses the firings, accentuating the stock rise with a happy tone of voice and smile. CNBC, the dedicated Wall Street cable network, whose chief occupation is promoting Worldwide business and stock market activity, is particularly crass in downplaying the effects downsizing has on families, in favor of promoting the financial benefit and gain derived by a handful of stockholders.

It is quite evident Wall Street does not realize, or more likely, does not care, of the impact stockmarket playing firms are having on the lives of the American people. Wall Street's total disregard for Main Street is criminal, immoral, and Un-American.

A general point of view held by some financial analysts suggest Wall Street is engaged in cannibalizing itself; that is to say the more American workers unemployed by a company, results in fewer wage earners present in the marketplace to purchase that companies products. This theory has been espoused lately by Stanley Roach, of Morgan Stanley, a Wall Street brokerage firm. Mr. Roach suggested Wall Street traded companies are indeed downsizing themselves out of the marketplace. Theory being fewer workers earning high enough wages equals fewer consumers.

Mr. Roach is either grossly incorrect or terribly naïve. What Mr. Roach and many in this country fail to understand about big business, is Corporate America is no longer interested in either producing, nor selling to the American public!

Publicly held corporations today are consumed by an unyielding quest for ever-higher stock prices on a daily basis. The continued position of large company CEO's depends on the firms net paper worth consistently rising; and not on a yearly basis, as once was the case - but on an almost daily basis.

Corporate CEO's realize if they announce a reduction in employees, resulting in diminished associated labor costs; their company's stock will inherently rise, once again placating the greedy stockholders-until next week!

According to International economic advisors and portfolio managers, the reason American companies have suddenly (past 10 years) disregarded the American consumer is directly interlinked to worldwide economic and trading markets. No longer is the American company xyz dependent on stateside consumers for their labor, or revenue.

It has become much more profitable for American company's to produce, market, and sell their product in foreign lands. This country's corporations cannot afford to employ American production labor, and sell that product to another nation who's average yearly income is one month's of an American worker.

During the NAFTA and GNATT debates, much mention was made of the potential for Mexican, and others, to purchase in-demand American products. Everyone connected with the NAFTA and GNATT policies Lied!

Using common sense, how could anyone expect Mexicans earning $.85 an hour to purchase anything manufactured in the USA? Do Americans earning $5.00 per hour buy Caddilacs, or purchase half-a-million dollar homes? Of course not! Mexicans, Chinese, Thai's and residents of many other foreign country's would not be able to purchase American made goods and products. The only possible manner in which American Companies could sell their products to third world nations is to produce the product there! Employing that country's cheap labor in order to produce a cheap-costing product.

The stockmarket has increased over 1200 points in value the past two years. American Corporations over dangerously overvalued, some fifteen to thirty times their cash flow! On top of that, these companies are engaged in a monumental paper stock ponzi scheme, and its legal! If company xyz is worth 100 million dollars according to the hyperinflated stockmarket, but it's cash revenues amount to 30 million, and it's loans plus interest (which were issued based on the company's stock portfolio worth) amount to 50 million dollars - guess what? Should foreign and stateside investors bail out of that company tomorrow, it would now be in 20 million dollars debt, undoubtedly causing immediate bankruptcy, and the loss of even more jobs!

To further complicate the stock market, one half of all investment in American owned companies listed on Wall Street, are foreign investments, paving the way for worldwide answerability, as opposed to American responsibility.

Re-enactment, 1774 Musket Demonstration Hit Of New Jersey Militia Gathering

The New Jersey Militia, in a well attended picnic gathering, on Sunday May 19, was treated to a Colonial Minuteman presentation Re-enactment by Ken Ballinghoff, Commander of the Camden County Division of the NJM.

Commander Ballinghoff, appearing on behalf of NJM Founder Earl Dickey, awed the gathering of 75 Patriots by entering the grounds dressed in full 1774 New Jersey Militia Minuteman regalia. The Camden County Commander then proceeded to demonstrate the sequence performed, step by step, with a live 1774 French made musket.

Mr. Ballinghoff enacted the entire holding, loading, and firing sequence as employed by our Founding Fathers. The actual 'firing' of the musket, complete with 1774 edition bayonet, was awesome, bringing a round of immediate applause by all attending.

Mr. Ballinghoff then encouraged the present Militia members to 'try their aim' at firing the gun responsible for America's freedom from British rule. Many of the members took advantage of this historic opportunity.

While much discussion took place regarding Constitutional issues of a local and national nature, most members agreed time was running short on hoped for peaceful political change within the system.

NJM Leader Earl Dickey gave a rousing speech, relating the story of a woman yelling at Mr. Dickey- while he was picketing outside the NJ State Capitol April 19 - that Koresh and 'those' children deserved to die. Mr. Dickey, to his credit, remained calm and asked the woman if David Koresh and any of those children had ever done anything to hurt her, or anyone else? To this the belligerent woman had no response, put her head down and walked away.

This story was part of Mr. Dickey's lesson that the American public must be educated and won over one at a time, a point Colony News has been advocating for some time. (Read following report on MOM regarding educating public)

The gathering, which was made possible due to the kindness and hospitality of Dan Johnson, who provided an excellent location deep within the New Jersey Pines, was the largest gathering of the NJM to date. Food was plentiful, including grilled chicken, salads, burgers and hot dogs. NJM organizer Denny Rambo's hard work was instrumental in making the gathering a success. Bill Cummings set up a table of tee-shirts and informational books for members. MOM Founder John Trochman had Expressed a packet of Militia material to Colony News, who covered the event, but, alas, the packet did not arrive in NJ till Monday. Mass. Militia Leader Leroy Crenshaw tried hard to attend and speak at the gathering, but due to the late notification, and prior commitments, was unable to.

An interesting article was displayed in the May's edition of the NJM newsletter. Mr. Dickey, upon notification Morris Dees SPCA organization had 'listed' New Jersey as having 'no' Militia movement, promptly notified and informed Dees's group to include himself and the NJM to the disreputed SPCA database!

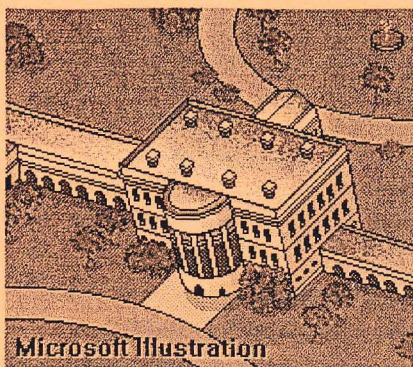

We at Colony News thank all involved for allowing us to participate in the New Jersey Militia's gathering in the pines.

Stark County, Ohio Unorganized Militia Concerned About Foreign Military Bases On U.S. Soil

Stark County, Ohio Militia Commanders Edward and Cathy Havran cite the intrusion of foreign military bases on American soil as one of their chief concerns. The Commanders' Havran tell Colony News:

Why do the people stand for it? This is one of the issues first raised by militias. No one believed us. Most still don't. They also don't know about the various joint exercises staged on American soil. These exercises simulate invasions and suppression of civil insurrections.

People need to start asking why our government has taken a sudden interest in these sort of things. These aren't games and will someday be used against real people. Why doesn't the mainstream media report these activities before they are history?

Regarding the Montana 'Freemen', the Stark County Division echoed sentiment shared by many other Militia units, saying: We think the voice of Patriots has so far kept the government from murder. However, they can only be restrained so long, and the 'Freemen' should come out and spare lives. If they came out and their safety was protected, the American public would be exposed to a big revelation the government wants hidden.

On Constitutional issues Commanders Edward and Cathy Havran told Colony News: We are equally concerned for the entire Constitution and Bill Of Rights, as well as the second Amendment.

For instance, the fourth, fifth, ninth and tenth Amendments are also under attack. We attend all manner of Patriotic meetings and events and try to get the press to open the public's eyes.

On the increasing topic of 'educating' the American public, the Stark County Division mirrored many other state Militias, explaining to Colony News: The education problem is perhaps the problem deserving our best attention and we must come up with effective ways of letting the public get to know us and our true purpose.

When asked by Colony News if the Stark County Militia agrees with the Central Michigan Militia's stance that Militias offer an organized alternative to disaffected Americans, Mr. And Mrs. Havran relied: Most definitely. Then went on to add: Militias are attracting the very best of America. People who care enough about their country, their children, and the future, to risk their lives, jobs and good names.

One of the most important issues concerning the Stark County OUM is the Fourth Amendment, on which Colony News was told: The Fourth Amendment is being violated by the Federal government (seizure of anyone's personal property that they covet) and people must question their motives. How much in property do they seize every year?

The agencies seizing it get to keep it. Do you see a motive here? How many people have lost property ever get convicted, or even have charges brought against them? How many innocent 'targets' get their property back?

Our independent farmers are being forced out of a way of life by the IRS, EPA, and big business. This puts the food supply for hundreds of millions in the hands of a few.

The Commanders closed by saying: We've met lots of Militia members from almost every state and have never seen a copy of the "Turner Diary" nor have we heard anyone discuss having read it. Of course, this is just one of the many lies being told to make demons out of anyone refusing to wear blinders. There is only one Bible, and it is for everyone.

MOM Forms Committee To Expose UN-U.S. Global Funding Of Drug Trade

Militia Of Montana Founder John Trochman informed Colony News in a privileged interview, that MOM has recently set up a committee, headed by Ed Brown, to explore and expose drug trafficking by American public officials.

Trochman told Colony News he is alarmed by the fact that 70% of the nations heroin imports pass through Montana, most of which he feels is condoned by state officials. Trochman also said: The drug trade in this country is led by UN-U.S. global funding through a UN-United States special committee.

If MOM's committee can indeed uncover the links between the almost free flow of drugs into this country - and U.S. cooperation and involvement, Trochman's committee will undoubtedly blow the lid off this long running government scam. Exposing and proving government officials are linked to drug trafficking would certainly destroy public opinion in government, and enhance greatly the public's conception of Militias nationwide.

Mr. Trochman also told Colony News: The development of the Militia movement nationwide is exploding! Reports and conversations Colony News has with a number of state Militias supports this statement. Almost ALL state Militias report dramatic new membership enrollment, especially since the Oklahoma City bombing incident and Clinton's attempt to circumvent American freedoms by cashing in on the following hysteria, proposing an array of anti-privacy, anti-Constitutional laws masked as anti-terrorist.

Speaking of the Oklahoma Bombing (Which Colony News KNOWS the government had prior knowledge of, and may indeed have perpetrated) the MOM founder informed colony News that an unnamed U.S. General called Mr. Trochman immediately after the bombing and told Trochman "the whole thing smelled like a rat."

Regarding the 'Freemen' standoff, Mr. Trochman told Colony News an unnamed person, or persons, were involved in 'expert' negotiations with the Freemen. That this person had been involved in past negotiations between the Feds and Patriots, and that this person would also represent them in court. Trochman also said: The trade off necessary for negotiations to succeed require a 'public' trial for the Freemen, enabling them to present the Federal Reserve Fraud to the American public.

Colony News mentioned to Mr. Trochman his recent bout on CBS's 48 Hours, hosted by Dan Rather. For those readers who did not view the episode, it consisted of CBS dispatching a 'peaches-and-cream bitch with orders to 'entrap' Trochman, thereby attempting to discredit the Militia.

Trochman tells Colony News he smelled a rat, and was on-guard right from the beginning. He explains the bubble-headed British bleach blond laid a twenty dollar bill on the Montana Militia's table at the Preparedness Expo in Las Vegas, then proceeded to innocently pick the same book another CBS correspondent had two years prior, during another interview.

Mr. Trochman was immediately alerted by this maneuver however, refusing to be entrapped and cutting-off the interview post-haste, leaving the correspondent, who Trochman described as: A witch of the ultimate Satan-the establishment press!

Another issue of grave concern to MOM is the growing, and impending food shortage, which has been totally ignored by establishment media, but has received heavy coverage in 'alternate press' publications. (read next months Colony News for extensive investigative news on this topic) MOM has wrote extensively on this subject in The Free American.

Finally Mr. Trochman told Colony News: That We The People; in 1775 it took six years for the Colonial Militias to form. It's been four years now since Waco, the beginning. That leaves just two years to go - the educational process is beginning. Colony News appreciates Mr. Trochman's insight for the benefit of our readers.

threat to new-crop. Karnal Bunt Disease is serious threat to wheat crop. Mite Disease in bee hives has drastically curtailed production of honey. Many hive producers quit due to cheap imported honey. USDA reports 45% of winter wheat in 19 states is poor-to-very poor condition.

Scientists have issue a 1400 page report called the Global Biodiversity Assessment, which claims 30,000 plant and animal species face possible extinction. There was no mention of human extinction in the report issued by; guess who? The UN of course. Wonder how many tree were extincted in order to prepare the 1400 page report.

The Republic of Texas, has Constitutionally formed It's own government, rendering the State of Texas government powerless. Texas was annexed, never admitted as a state of the Union. Texas State officials immediately arrested and detained without bail the leader of the new Constitutional nation. State officials told Richard McClaren they would release him - if he returned their state to them!

Bryan Lamb, CEO of C-Span, tells viewers constantly his Network is fair and balanced. He reminds viewers C-Span always presents a Democrat and a Republican to discuss issues. Suggestion Bryan: Get your ass out of Washington for a change and find out what Real America is discussing. Lamb is inside-the-beltway puppet, whose salary is paid by Cable TV companies, who are owned by publishing houses. The VP of C-Span is a fellow named Phillips, who is head of the Newspaper Guild Association. That's the reason alternative press is never allowed on C-Span. Mr. Lamb is a whore who has been bought and paid for by the establishment press and Washington politicians many times over. Wake up America!

Commander Starr remains in a Georgia prison after being entrapped by the Feds. The Georgia Militia leader's property was discovered to have bomb making materials on site. This discovery came only days after an undercover Fed attempted to lure Mr. Starr into a bomb-making scheme. Starr told the Fed no, he does not get involved in that sort of thing. Almost immediately the Feds raided his property and discovered guess what? Yup, bomb-making materials - the same ones the Feds attempted to lure Mr. Starr with. The Georgia Militia is about ready to go to war over this slime tactic by the Feds.

New Jersey Militia Leader Earl Dickey has invited the governor, Attorney General and FBI to appear live on a local Trenton radio station, WTTM, to debate the issues of concern to Patriots. We'll keep you posted if this event takes place.

Clinton, the CIA, Mossad a Russia all sleeping in the same bed? Is Clinton a Russian/Mossad Mole? Colony News will do an extensive special report on this topic in July's edition.

Criminal Politics' publisher Lawrence Patterson listed the now dead compadres who have surrounded Clinton at one time or the other. With friends like the

Lots of evidence beginning to point to the Mossad as the outfit that did-in Vince Foster, with the CIA's acknowledgment and silent consent. The three top officials (recently appointed by Clinton) of the CIA are Israelis. Can you say CIA - Mossad, one and the same? The United States intelligence service has been compromised! It has now become an unofficial arm of the Mossad.

Keep the short-wave radios humming, the Internet jumping and the satellite dishes motoring. The means by which to defeat the establishment press is through alternative communications.

Secure Communications Strategies: NOTE:

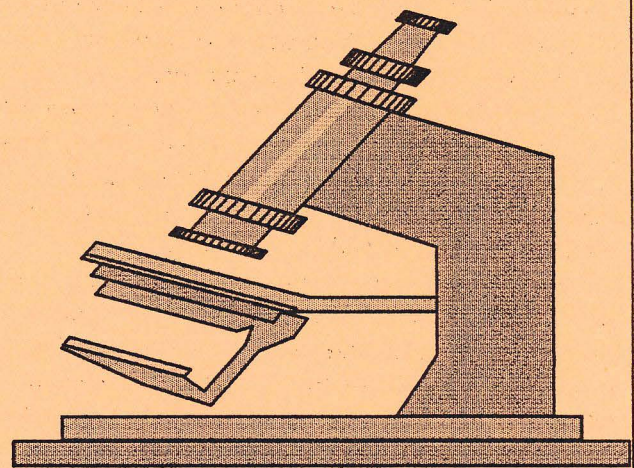

This is one of a series of articles written by individuals or organizations that deal closely with personal information or privacy issues. In the interest of fairness, we believe that you, the reader, are entitled to view all sides of an issue, and then make up your own mind.

Disclaimer: Warning: Be Advised that "Secure Communications Strategies" is published for informational and descriptive purposes only. Neither the author nor Privacy Newsletter assumes any responsibility for the use or misuse of information contained in this article. The material published herein is not intended nor implied as legal advise.

Place yourself in the position of someone requiring maximum privacy as if your life depended on it. You'll gain concrete insight and intuition that will help you avoid those seeking to locate you, whom we will call the "tracers", representing whatever nemesis you seek to avoid. Seek to develop your own individual and unique sense of intuition. To avoid the tracer, you must be familiar with his method of operations. Intuition is informed by knowledge, and knowledge should be informed by intuition. This somewhat intangible quality can make the crucial difference between safety or exposure—or worse.

How most missing persons are found: If the truth were known, skip tracing is not an extremely difficult profession, and can be very lucrative. The private investigator (PI) is not the only kind of tracer. When we speak of the tracer, we mean: PI's, Feds and police, government and private spies and intelligence agencies, collection agents, bounty hunters, or anyone who might want to locate you.

To find almost all of your "regular" skips, just learn the methods available in ISDA courses. There are more books about missing persons than any other area of investigation, and it represents the "bread and butter" of many PI agencies. Any good tracer will be signed up with one or more computer search services, now readily available. He may locate many targets in just a few hours or days, mostly through public records where the skip has left a trail. Lesson One for the serious skip: Stay out of public records! Lesson Two: Consider a name change.

How Missing Persons Stay Missing: Our privacy seeker is serious and has made privacy his way of life. He is hard to find, and makes up perhaps ten percent or less of all missing persons cases. Some investigators label these cases "difficult" or "impossible to locate," often charging large fees anyway. Some skips are fleeing criminal prosecution, prison, or engage in illegal enterprises which demand absolute secrecy and security. A high level of secrecy and security is required for other legitimate enterprises too: gem and gold dealers, undercover police operatives, coin dealers, arms merchants, private investigators, bodyguard, critical and/or controversial research, labs, and inventors, to mention a few.

Unpopular or "deviant" lifestyles, beliefs, and practices lead some individuals to distance themselves from "society" as much as they can. Certain totalitarian trends in modern society cause some to avoid contact with "Big Brother" government as much as possible. Persons in failed witness "protection" programs, where security has been breached, may turn to the private sector after being compromised by Feds or other cops. Additional non-criminal reasons to avoid being located may include; oppression from political, terrorist or other dangerous groups, flight from abusive families or cults; or fleeing threats and violence perpetrated by individuals. It is not our purpose to judge or evaluate, and other reasons may exist. All have in common a distinct need for privacy. The techniques discussed here are used to achieve a successful level of privacy and secrecy, but require dedication and thoroughness to be effective.

Mail: Get all your mail at a P.O. Box in one of your fictitious names. You will have to fill out USPS Form 1093 with a physical address (required), but you can later "move." Sometimes the post office will ask for an update of your 1093. This can be routine, but could indicate that someone is mail-tracing you. They may have already received your "dud" address, and have continued their inquiry by requesting this information from the post office. This is perfectly legal, as the 1903 is public information for someone doing business or seeking to serve legal papers on the boxholder or someone else authorized to receive mail through the box. The post office may ask for the updated 1903, so it could signal that someone has inquired. The tracer can get a lot of free work done this way, but he also runs the risk of alerting the skip. The final word here is watch your mail!

Mail Drops: A "mail drop" or private postal box is sometimes recommended, but "caveat emptor" is the watchword. These services are available in most areas, and are used by numerous individuals and businesses for legitimate reasons. You can provide additional cover by having your mail go through a series of drops, but don't forget there are directories of mail drops to detect this kind of address.

Because of reverse skip tracing (see below), we do not recommend mail drops when seeking maximum security. Safest of all is to establish an address where you (or a trusted friend or associate) can receive your mail. For the price of some mail drops, you might rent a small cheap room or apartment in the "seedy" area of town (if a particular type of address is not needed) where you can get your mail in a group of mailboxes for that building. You can pick up your mail at varying times, or have someone else do it for you. Make friends with the superintendent of a building so that your mail is delivered with that of the residents (you don't have there, of course).

A cover story can easily account for your need of this service. A shopkeeper or other business owner might also do this. A "homeless" person might persuade a mission, church, or other agency to receive his mail, but the volume of mail should be small as not to attract attention. These suggestions work best if you don't get a lot of mail and are not involved in illegal or other compromising situations, which might lead to blackmail, exposure, or worse!

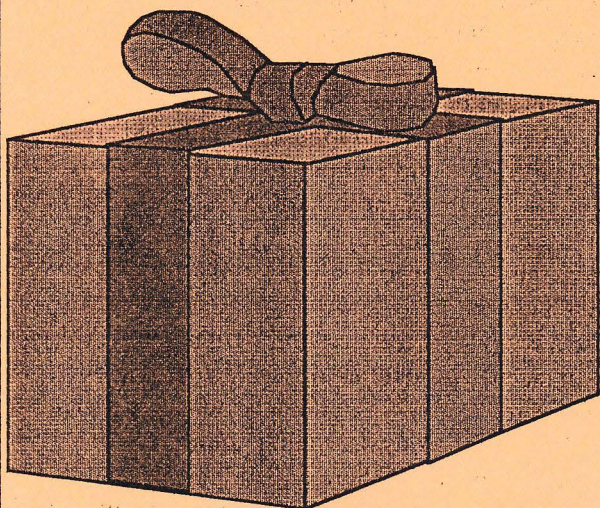

General Delivery: Sounds hokey, but it's a very good cover. The main post office in a town or city is probably the best location as they are the busiest and least likely to remember or notice you. Try to appear properly nondescript when going for your mail, and don't establish a pattern.

Create A Street Address From A P.O. Box: A box is not suitable for all situations. You will need a street address. Every post office has a physical street address, so send your mail there. Example: You are Mr. A. Skipper, box 911, Metropolis, TX 78444-0911. Find out the street address of the post office, and write your address like this: Mr. A. Skipper, 1411 Main Street, Number 911, Metropolis, TX 78444-0911. All boxholders now have an individual 9 digit zip code; its use should insure you get mail so addressed.

Some correspondents tell us that an occasional nosy postal employee will tell you that this is not permissible, but generally you shouldn't have any trouble. If you insist the employee show you chapter and verse in the administrative codes, you will probably prevail, but may draw unwanted attention. In another instance of a branch post office in a shopping center, there was difficulty obtaining the actual physical address as the employees claimed it was never ever used. Even after the address was obtained, some mail continued to be improperly returned to sender. You will have to weigh each case, but we recommend that you try another post office or branch if you run into snags at a particular location.

Reverse Skip Tracing: Some ads for mail drops are just a ploy to get your name and address, which is cross-referenced with lists of known missing persons. Even "legitimate" drops may sell their client lists, or allow tracers to go through the names. You can rest assured that every mail drop will cooperate with police or Feds if they come around asking about you (or your assumed name). Many books recommend use of mail drops, but we see too many possible hang-ups. It is possible that some of these "expert" missing persons authors are just making sure that mail drops have a steady clientele for reverse tracing?

Answering Advertisements: Keep your eyes open, and examine closely what is recommended in some "inside information" or "underground" publications. Be careful answering any potentially risky advertisement. An example is found in magazines catering to drug users and advocates, such as "High Times Magazine." Many ads are probable D.E.A. fronts, especially the ones for information or paraphernalia for growing pot, mushrooms, etc. An ad for information on privacy, false ID, or illegal scams, may be a front for reverse skip tracers—or someone else tracing people like you! Don't avoid seeking new information, but be sure your postal privacy is well protected. If your return address is traced, be sure they come up empty handed.

Registered Mail, Certified Mail, And C.O.D.:

Once you have established your P.O. Box, the only mail coming to your real address should be "occupant" mail. If registered or certified mail does come (could be C.O.D. or insured parcel post or any mail requiring a signature), say you are someone else, say the person moved and left no address, moved months/years ago. Say anything, but never sign for mail—no exceptions! The carrier is out of line to ask who you are, so this should work. Tracers use this as a cheap and effective way to locate skips.

Packages And Deliveries: Always pay with money orders. Your receipt is proof enough is required, and virtually impossible to trace. Keep the receipt blank; don't fill it in unless needed. Although Fedex, UPS, and other couriers say they can't deliver to a P.O. Box, you can still use it. Say on the order, "Notify by mail at my P.O. Box for delivery instructions." This causes a little delay, but the parcel agent will simply send you a postcard with an 1-800 phone number so you can call with delivery instructions. Editor's Note: Remember that any 800 number you dial will have a record of your phone number. Those who use automatic number identification will see the number immediately. Others will have to wait until they receive their phone bill. So for maximum privacy, call their 800 number from a pay phone far from where you live. Have it sent to a safe address, or don't give them an address at all. Pick up the package at their office. Never have anything delivered to your real address! That way, if anything does come, you will be alerted, and refuse delivery as described.

Mail Tracing: This is the cheapest and one of the most useful tools of any tracer, and it is often the opening gambit in efforts to locate you. Look out for any suspicious mail. All P.O. Box information on USPS Form 1093 can be accessed by others. Numerous cover letters are available, but the best way is to state that the individual used the box for business purposes, or that a court action is intended or in process. The post office will release the records, including the physical street address you gave them.

If a tracer sends you a letter, and it doesn't come back, he may be enticed to advance another level, such as a personal visit and/or surveillance. Never accept registered, certified, or insured mail that requires your signature. To deflect first class and all other mail, consider buying (through the mail of course) a small rubber stamp saying "Unknown-Return-To-Sender," "Deceased," "Move-No Forwarding Order On File., or similar post office wording. Be sure to drop it in a mail box not served by your regular post office or branch.

Beware of responding to mail offers asking you to call for confirmation because you have "won" a "free" prize or whatever. It could simply be a ruse used by a tracer.

Another ruse is sending a postcard, flyer, or letter advertising lucrative employment in your profession (or something else you need or want) with a number to call collect. If family or friends' names are known, you may receive an "emergency call" notifying you of the death of a loved one. Don't respond—no exceptions! Have a backup plan for any emergency communications with friends or family if you absolutely must have it. So if a call comes, you know it's a ruse, and do not respond. Advance planning will avoid most of this exposure.

Mail Covers: If Feds or other cops are tracing you, they may establish a mail cover for a thirty day period, with extensions. A mail cover does not require a warrant, so it's easy to use. It is initiated by the agency, working directly with the local post office. They record all the information on the outside of the envelope, based on the premise that this is public information. They identify your regular correspondents, contacts, banks, credit cards, other mail transactions, suppliers, business associates, and much more. Supposedly this does not delay your mail. But who knows? It seems that it would delay it (given the efficiency of most post office workers), or that you might receive mail in large amounts when you usually do not. Monitor post marks, and if you receive a lot of mail you will have a good idea how long it takes mail to reach you from various parts of the country. Always watch your mail, and it's delivery patterns.

Sending Sensitive Mail: If you use a mail drop, change it from time to time, and always run your mail through more than one drop. When quicker delivery is needed, consider private delivery services. Drop the package off at a pick-up point—do not use post office express mail, particularly of moving detectable contraband. It is routinely X-rayed and "sniffed."

The bus can be used as numerous parcels are shipped every day. Common items shipped are tools, auto parts and equipment of all sorts, but many suitcases and cardboard boxes as well. Even if you just have an envelope, wrap it in a large box and weigh it down so that it is similar to other boxes being handled.

Use a typewriter for anything written, preferably a newer electric model that doesn't leave a distinctive mark or indicate anything about your key pressure. For short notes, consider taking your paper to a large discount store where typewriters are set out for your demonstration. If you're typing something that takes only a minute or so, this is a good safe source. Libraries often have typewriters available for use for patrons, so use one of your cover identities to get a library card.

Better yet are copy centers and business centers where typewriters, computers, printers, and copy machines are all located together. No one will require ID to rent you a typewriter (or computer with a laser printer) for a half hour, and no one will remember you among hundreds of users. For very sensitive correspondence, photocopy the letter after you type it, and send this copy as the "original." Some sources suggest developing an unreadable scrawl as your signature. It's not always necessary to include your return address. You must be sure that the mail is correctly addressed, and that nothing inside would compromise your location or identity if it were opened by the authorities (or a tracer—yes, they may violate the law!)

Avoiding Mail Tracers At Your Real Home: Remove the mailbox. Remove any signs from doors, windows, or walls, which may draw unwanted attention. Never put your name(s) on anything, and remove any old nameplates. You can remove address numbers. If the postman has no mailbox or no proper address, he cannot deliver, and mail is returned "undeliverable as addressed."

Telephone Security: Depending on who's after you, there may be no security at all. The Feds (and others) can turn a phone into an area "bug" with proper equipment. If you must have a phone, be aware of the latest technology. Be sure to list it in a fictitious name or a business name. I'm told that Ma Bell now wants you to be a corporation to do this. That's OK—be a corporation! If they ask for a corporate registration number, find out what one looks like in your state, and provide it.

If you receive a message or letter asking you to call someone collect, don't do it! This is an old tracing technique. If you don't give yourself away in the conversation, the tracer will simply call the operator, ask for time, charges, origin of call, and phone number. Since the tracer is paying the charges, the operator will be happy to cooperate.

Avoid cordless phones and radio communications. Police (and anyone else who wants) can listen and record these conversations. Editors Note: Through the Digital Wiretapping Act of 1994, it is now illegal to monitor cordless phone calls. However, with millions of scanners out there that can intercept these calls, the Act is realistically useless.

You're using the open airways, so your communications are literally open to anyone who wants to listen. Numerous scanning devices are available. Some cordless phones have variable "floating" security codes, and you could combine this with a voice scrambler. This may be enough, depending on who's tracing you, but what one computer scrambles, another computer can eventually unscramble. This also goes for any "codes" you might devise or use.

In the ever-changing world of communications technology and spy devices, "never say never" about anything, and always assume that someone is at least one step ahead of you in sophistication. Stay away from all electronic communications if you can. If you must communicate over these media, take every precaution possible. Best of all—don't have a phone. It's easier than you think. A lot of phone use is habit anyway. If you must make calls, use safe locations like a friend's home or a secure pay phone, but don't establish a regular pattern of usage anywhere.

Anytime you call an 800 or 900 number, your number may legally be displayed to the business you are calling. Watch for ruses to get you to call so they can trap your number. Most likely they will ask you to return the call to a particular extension or name.

Caller ID service, of course, is widely available, and will change personal telephone habits forever. No more "anonymous" calls or inquiries. As of April 12, 1995, all long distance carriers must transmit interstate calling party numbers. For more on this interesting service, read the Caller ID material in your phone directory, or call a service representative. If you need to make an anonymous call, for maximum protection you should use a pay phone. Depending on the nature of your calls, vary the location and times of day.

Face To Face Communications: In past times, when your telephone wasn't secure, you could usually set up a safe face-to-face meeting. The ready availability of numerous "bugs" has changed all of that, especially the ultra-small micro varieties. Depending on the level of security required, it can be very expensive to deploy counter devices and detectors. They may be useless, and give you a false sense of security.

If your meeting place is known, bugs can be planted in advance. Your contact will probably be bugless, but the whole area will already be compromised. Simple parabolic ears and smaller listening devices can easily be employed if cover can be established. These are generally defeated by meeting in large open spaces, yet this presents its own additional risks. Technology has advanced rapidly in this field. What was science fiction yesterday is common equipment tomorrow. Never underestimate the technological capacity of the tracer.

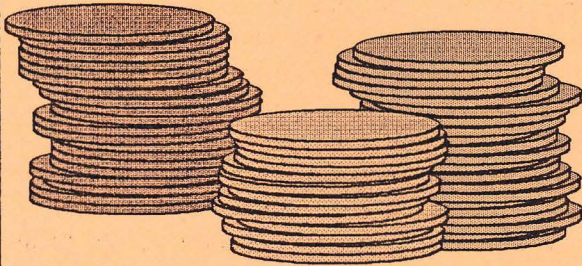

Who can you trust when it comes to bugs? Trust no one! Even a friend or safe contact (or their car or home) can be bugged without his knowledge. After the tracer has identified your contact, he will observe his patterns, just waiting for you to show up. This is particularly successful if you have a girlfriend, pusher, money source, or anyone/anywhere you just have to visit regularly. If the tracer knows you're eventually coming, then it's just a matter of time.

Your contact could be compromised by threats to his (or his family's) safety, or by blackmail. Very few people will remain totally loyal to you under such circumstances. You can hope that your contact will at least warn you if this is happening, but don't count on it. Watch your friends and contacts for any signs which might alert you. Someone who was formerly helpful, jovial, and friendly who begins to act reserved, afraid, and uneasy may be under just this kind of pressure.

Additional Tips From H. Roehm:

Never subscribe to a newspaper or any other service using a delivery person: Every tracer knows these individuals are often talkative, nosy, and have a wealth of information about you and your habits.

When you move, do not send "change of address" notices to anyone.

To keep Uncle Sam away, get off most lists: The IRS uses sophisticated mailing lists to apprehend tax evaders, categorized by high-salary professions, spending patterns, lifestyle, and purchase of items like vacations and luxury cars.

Why Pay Interest For The Use Of Federal Reserve Notes And Credits When We Can Have Interest-Free U.S. Treasury Notes?

Article Submitted To Colony News By John Klima Of The Constitutional Bank & Trust Company Institute, Issaquah, WA

During and after the Civil War, Senator John Sherman of Ohio was an influential figure in congressional financial legislation. After the passage of the National Banking Act of 1863, he personally invited foreign international bankers to take advantage of this banking bonanza. In a letter to the Rothschild Brothers in London, he is reported to have written:

"The few who can understand the system will be either so interested in its profits, or so dependent of its favors that there will be no opposition from that class; while on the other hand, the great body of people, mentally incapable of comprehending the tremendous advantages that capital derives from the system, will bear its burdens without complaint and perhaps without even suspecting that the system is inimical to their interests."

One-half century later Congress chartered the Federal reserve banks in 1913. During the following eighty-three years, Americans became entangled in a combined banking and national government regulated economic system, financed by currency and credit on loan from the Federal reserve banks and affiliated commercial banks. Federal Reserve Notes and credits on loan to the national government gain circulation in exchange for interest bearing United States Treasury securities. Loans at interest to the private sector (individuals, businesses, industries, and States) are provided by commercial banks for suitable collateral security.

The national and private sector debts that have so far accumulated cannot be discharged, but will continue to grow as currency and credit are borrowed to discharge the interest costs. Sherman was correct; the people do not comprehend the system, and those who do and benefit from it will not reveal the rip-off.

This is why most Americans believe in the prevailing idea that claims balanced congressional budgets will save future generations from financial ruin. Without government deficit spending, it is popularly believed that more financial resources will become available for economic improvements. Nothing could be further from the truth. If the people continue to patronize the Federal reserve and commercial banks, the financial ruin of future generations is assured. The simple reason is this:
The amounts of notes and credits borrowed cannot repay the borrowed amounts plus interest.

Without the national government borrowing Federal reserve bank credits for deficit spending, a currency shortage will occur as currency disappears from circulation to pay interest on the debts. This will cause the ranks of those needing aid to increase, and as they share a decreased amount of currency they must eventually experience worse economic and social conditions. It is not likely that the private sector will borrow the additional amounts of the Federal reserve banks' credits necessary to make up for the shortage. Nevertheless, we are already being prepared for this inevitability; American Express is presently suggesting that people charge the cost of charitable food donations on their credit cards.

To prevent depletion of Federal Reserve Notes and credits in circulation, needed to support any level of economic activity, never-ending borrowing is needed to pay the interests on the existing national and private sector debts. Additional borrowing is needed to increase amounts in circulation for a growing population. In spite of congressional balanced budgets, the private sector debts will continue to grow, but at an increased rate. Borrowing to pay the interest on all debts and borrowing to increase circulation will accumulate as debts in the private sector.

Money in the form of gold and silver coins is available from the U.S. Treasury for constitutional purposes; to be otherwise would amount to treason against our constitutional governments. In addition, Congress may issue interest-free U.S. Treasury Notes as legal tender for private debts. The present circulation U.S. nickel-clad-copper coins are the constitutional metal equivalents of interest-free U.S. Treasury Notes.

Since the only purpose of Federal Reserve Notes and credits is to finance deficit spending for unconstitutional entitlements, the Federal reserve banks and the national government conspire against the lawful objectives of the United States. Congress avoids hyper-inflation that would otherwise result from excessive deficit spending by recycling excessive amounts of notes and credits through sales of U.S. Treasury securities. As we have learned, these debts accumulate, and now require huge interest payments to be distributed among domestic and foreign investors. Interest payments to foreign investors help subsidize their industries which makes U.S. products less competitive.

Now that Congress is determined to establish and maintain balanced budgets, it should begin to consider issuing interest-free U.S. Treasury Notes as legal tender for private debts. With balanced budgets, inflation may be controlled by individuals through savings or by the U.S. government taxing excessive amounts of currencies out of circulation.

The continued use of Federal Reserve Notes and credits on loan at interest cannot be justified.

Article 1, Section 10, of the Constitution denies the States power to make any thing but gold and silver coin a tender in payment of debts. Article IV, Section 4, of the U.S. Constitution guarantees republican forms of governments-not democratic forms-to the States. Though the republican forms are presently dormant due to the use of unconstitutional currency, they are the only forms of State governments authorized by the U.S.

Constitution. Their resurrection is possibly by people as Article IV, Section 2, state citizens providing States with constitutionally required gold and silver coins. A system of constitutionally acceptable republican state chartered banks and trusts companies is required to make this happen.

Gold and silver coins cannot be put into general circulation with U.S. nickel-clad copper coins and Treasury Notes since they would be hoarded. Therefore, it is necessary to separate the gold and silver coins from all circulating currencies. This is where republican state chartered banks and trusts companies play a key role. They may act as intermediaries between the circulating currencies, and gold and silver coins. Payments in gold and silver coins made to and by the States remain in the bank and trust company depositors accounts, or the States treasuries. By contract, depositors may withdraw circulating currencies of equivalent values exchanged for gold and silver coins in their accounts.

An advantage of the banks and trust companies is their ability to issue bank notes (not legal tender) redeemable for nickel-clad-copper coins and U.S. Treasury Notes. Though beyond the scope of this article, these notes make interest-free home loans possible, along with adequate amounts of currencies to support robust economies. Even medical care is possible that would be better and less expensive than Medicaid and Medicare.

These economic benefits are essential for raising the standards of living for those suppressed by the present banking system, and easing the load on public and private charitable organizations.

Common laws provided for in the Seventh Amendment to the Constitution and courts will return upon the resurrection of republican state governments. They are institutions that state citizens of good will support since they promote civilized conduct within their jurisdictions. In relation to these laws, State citizens as common law jurors are sovereign, and have power to nullify conflicting and unreasonable legislated laws and bureaucratic meddling, but not constitutional laws. In 1834—two centuries after the first English settlers arrived in America—the United States Supreme Court explained the role and extent of common law in the United States.

"It is clear, there can be no common law of the United States. The federal government is composed of twenty-four sovereign and independent states, each of which may have its local usage's, customs and common law. There is no principle which pervades the union, and has the authority of law, that is not embodied in the constitution or laws of the union. The common law could be made a part of our system by legislative adoption.

When a common law right is asserted, we look to the state in which the controversy originated.

When the ancestors of the citizens of the United States migrated to this country, they brought with them, to a limited extent, the English common law, as it existed in England, has ever been in force for all its provisions, in any state of this Union. It was adopted only so far as its principles were suited to the condition of the colonies; and from this circumstance we see, what is the common law in one state, is not so considered in another. The judicial decisions, the usage's and customs of the respective states, must determine how far the common law has been introduced, and sanctioned in each."

Economists think of currencies only as mediums of exchange and stores of values. As we realize that their values extend beyond buying, selling, and saving, we need to learn how to utilize the ones that support and secure our God given natural and inalienable rights, U.S. Treasury gold and silver coins for State debts, and nickel-clad-copper coins and U.S. Treasury Notes in general circulation as legal tenders for private debts serve these purposes.

How Ben Franklin Made New England Prosperous

By: Charles G. Binderup

The following historical story is taken from a radio-address given by Congressman Charles G. Binderup, of Nebraska, about 50 years ago.

Colonies More Prosperous Than The Home

Country: Before the American War for Independence (1776), the colonized part of what is today the United States of America was a possession of England. It was called New England, and was made up of 13 colonies, which became the first 13 States of the great Republic.

Around 1750, this New England was very prosperous. Benjamin Franklin was able to write: "There was abundance in the Colonies, and peace was reigning on every border. It was difficult, and even impossible, to find a happier and more prosperous nation on all the surface of the globe. Comfort was prevailing in every home. The people, in general. Kept the highest moral standards, and education was widely spread."

When Benjamin Franklin went over to England to represent the interests of the Colonies, he saw a completely different situation; the working population of this country was gnawed by hunger and poverty. "The streets are covered with beggars and tramps," he wrote. He asked his English friends how England, with all its wealth, could have so much poverty among its working classes.

His friends replied that England was a prey to a terrible condition; it had too many workers! The rich said they were already overburdened with taxes, and could not pay more to relieve the needs and poverty of this mass of workers. Several rich Englishmen of that time actually believed, along with Malthus, that wars and plague were necessary to rid the country from man-power surpluses.

Franklin's friends than asked him how the American Colonies managed to collect enough money to support their poorhouses, and how they could overcome this plague of pauperism. Franklin replied:

"We have no poorhouses in the Colonies; and if we had some, there would be nobody to put them in, since there is, in the Colonies, not a single unemployed person, neither beggars nor tramps."

Thanks To Free Money Issued By The Nation:

His friends could not believe their ears, and even less understand this fact, since when the English poorhouses and jails became too cluttered, England shipped these poor wretches and down-and-outs, like cattle, and discharged, on the quays of the Colonies, those who had survived the poverty, dirtiness and privations of the journey. At that time, England was throwing into jail those who could not pay their debts.

They therefore asked Franklin how he could explain the remarkable prosperity of the New England Colonies. Franklin replied:

"That is simple. In the Colonies, we issue our own paper money. It is called 'Colonial Scrip'. We issue it in proper proportions to make the goods pass easily from the producers to the consumers. In this manner, creating ourselves our own paper money, we control its purchasing power and we have no interest to pay to no one."

The Bankers Impose Poverty: This information came to the knowledge of the English Bankers, and held their attention. They immediately took the necessary steps to have the British Parliament pass a law that prohibited the colonies from using their scrip money, and then ordered them to use only gold and silver money that was provided in insufficient quantity by the English Bankers. Then began in America the plague of debt-money, which has ever since brought so many curses to the American people.

The first law was passed in 1751, and then completed by a more restrictive law in 1763.

Franklin reported that one year after the implementation of this prohibition on Colonial money, the streets of the Colonies were filled with unemployed and beggars, just like in England, because there was not enough money to pay for the goods and work. The circulating medium of exchange had been reduced by half.

Franklin added that this was the original cause of the American Revolution-and not the tax on tea nor the Stamp Act, as it has been taught again and again in history books. The Financiers always manage to have removed from school books all that can throw light on their own schemes, and damage the glow that protects their power.

Franklin, who was one of the chief architects of the American independence wrote it clearly:

"The Colonies would gladly have borne the little tax on tea and other matters had it not been the poverty caused by the bad influence of the English Bankers on the Parliament, which has caused in the Colonies hatred of England and the Revolutionary War."

This point of view of Franklin was confirmed by great statesmen of his era: John Adams, Jefferson, and several others. A remarkable English historian, John Twells, wrote, speaking of the money of the Colonies, the Colonial Scrip:

"It was the monetary system under which America's Colonies flourished to such an extent that Edmund Burke was able to write about them: 'Nothing in the history of the world resembles their progress. It was a sound and beneficial system, and its effects led to the happiness of the people."

John Twells adds:

"In a bad hour, the British Parliament took away from America its representative money, forbade any further issue of bills of credit, these bills ceasing to be legal tender, and ordered that all taxes should be paid in coins. Consider now the consequences; this restriction of the medium of exchange paralyzed all the industrial energies of the people. Ruin took place in these once flourishing Colonies; most rigorous distress visited every family and every business, discontent became desperation, and reached a point, to use the words of Dr. Johnson, when human nature rises up and asserts its rights."

Another writer, Peter Cooper, expresses himself along the same lines. After having said how Franklin had explained to the London Parliament the cause of the prosperity of the Colonies, he wrote:

"After Franklin gave explanations on the true cause of the prosperity of the Colonies, the Parliament enacted laws forbidding the use of this money in the payment of taxes. This decision brought so many drawbacks and so much poverty to the people that it was the main cause of the Revolution. The suppression of the Colonial money was a much important reason for the general uprising than the Tea and Stamp Act."

The Scrip Of The Bankers

Today, in America as well as in Europe, we are under the regime of the Scrip of the Bankers instead of the scrip of the nation. Hence the public debts, everlasting interest charges, taxes that plunder purchasing power, with the only result being a consolidation of the financial dictatorship.

Events Leading To The Enactment Of The Constitution Of The United States Of America

Events By 1786, the Confederation of the United States, established in 1781 by the Articles of Confederation, was in danger of dissolution. A general feeling of dissatisfaction existed with a national government that lacked authority to legislate for the country as a whole in many vital matters and that was not empowered to enforce its decisions. Shays' Rebellion in Massachusetts and the possibility of intervention by foreign countries gave added point to the repeated warnings of George Washington and other statesmen that the government of the union, formed during the American Revolution, was in need of drastic revision if the U.S. were to endure as a nation.

A solution to the problem developed unexpectedly as a result of action taken by a convention of representatives of five states, held in Annapolis, Maryland, in 1786, to formulate a uniform code of trade regulations to apply to the 13 states of the Confederation. The Annapolis convention, in which James Madison and Alexander Hamilton were leading members, recommended to the 13 states that they send delegates to meet in another convention "to devise such further provisions as shall appear to them necessary to render the constitution of the federal government adequate to the exigencies of the Union. . . ." The Congress of the Confederation endorsed the proposal in February 1787, and set Philadelphia as the place, and May of that year as the time, for what later became known as the Constitutional, or Federal, Convention.

The Constitutional Convention

The Constitutional Convention, which opened in the State House in Philadelphia on May 25, 1787, was one of the most remarkable bodies ever to assemble anywhere. Twelve states were represented by 55 delegates. Rhode Island, fearful that national regulation would injure its lucrative trade, opposed revising the Articles of Confederation and sent no delegates.

George Washington was chosen president of the convention. Among the other delegates, a number of whom had signed the Declaration of Independence and many of whom had served in Congress, were James Madison, George Mason, and Edmund Randolph of Virginia; Benjamin Franklin, James Wilson, and Gouverneur and Robert Morris of Pennsylvania; Roger Sherman and Oliver Ellsworth of Connecticut; Rufus King of Massachusetts; Charles Cotesworth Pinckney of South Carolina; John Dickinson of Delaware; Alexander Hamilton of New York; William Paterson of New Jersey; and Luther Martin of Maryland. John Jay, who was U.S. secretary of foreign affairs, and John Adams and Thomas Jefferson, who were out of the country on government missions, did not attend the convention; nor did Patrick Henry or Samuel Adams, both of whom opposed the creation of a strong central government.

Except for brief adjournments to allow its committees to execute tasks imposed on them, the Constitutional Convention was in continuous session until its work was done and approved by "unanimous consent of the States present." On the whole the debates were conducted on a high plane of eloquence and practical statesmanship, but occasionally moments were acrimonious and sessions were stormy. At times the convention was deadlocked. On one occasion a number of delegates withdrew from the convention on the ground that it was exceeding its authority in writing a new constitution. Madison, called the Father of the Constitution, Franklin, then 81 years old, John Dickinson, and Roger Sherman, however, were especially skilled, tactful, and patient in resolving disputed issues during the 16 weeks the convention was in session.

All the major issues in dispute were disposed of by compromises that made possible the establishment of a national republic with a government of limited and delegated powers and that did much to determine the fundamental and unique features of the U.S. system of federal and state governments.

The first and most serious conflict in the Constitutional Convention occurred over the plans for a national government introduced by Virginia and New Jersey. Both plans provided for a national government of three independent branches: executive, judicial, and legislative, but they disagreed principally over the character of the legislature. The Virginia Plan, supported by the larger states, provided for a bicameral legislature: a House of Representatives elected by popular vote, and a Senate elected by the House. This would have given the more populous states control of the national legislature. The smaller states, fearful that their interests would suffer by such an arrangement, supported the New Jersey Plan, which provided for a unicameral legislation in which all the states were to have equal representation.

The issue was bitterly fought, and for a time it seemed that the convention would founder. The dispute was finally resolved, however, by the Connecticut, or Great, Compromise, establishing the present arrangement whereby the states are equally represented in the Senate and are represented in the House of Representatives in proportion to their populations. As a precaution against having to assume the financial burdens of the smaller states, the larger states exacted an agreement that revenue bills could originate only in the House, where the more populous states were to have greater representation. The southern states won the point that in enumerating the population of the states, three-fifths of the black slaves within their borders should be added to the total number of white persons within their borders.

Other important issues in the Constitutional Convention involved chiefly sectional economic interests. The southern states, which were not as populous as the northern states, feared that giving Congress the power to regulate trade might adversely affect their economy, based mainly on the export of tobacco, rice, and indigo and on slave trading. They demanded that legislation affecting commerce be enacted only by two-thirds majority votes, but they consented to eliminate this requirement when the northern states agreed to constitutional clauses prohibiting the federal government from levying export taxes and from interfering with the slave trade before 1808. The southern states were further placated by the provision for a decennial census as the basis for apportioning representatives, for they looked on this measure as a way to increase their representation in the House as their populations increased.

On September 12, 1787, the convention concluded the work of writing the Constitution and gave the completed draft to a committee on style to polish the language. The notable literary quality of the Constitution, an unusual feature in documents of state, is due principally to Gouverneur Morris. On September 17, 1787, 39 delegates, the other delegates being opposed or absent, signed the Constitution and sent it to the Congress of the Confederation. The Convention then adjourned. On September 28, Congress sent the Constitution to the states for ratification.

The Struggle over Ratification of the Constitution

Article VII of the Constitution stipulated that the Constitution could become effective only after conventions in two-thirds of the states had ratified it. This necessary ratification took place after a bitter struggle, in which some opponents condemned the establishment of a strong national government and urged instead the establishment of a confederation of sovereign, or chief, states. Others objected to the lack of adequate constitutional safeguards of fundamental rights. Although differences of opinion were expressed among the people as a whole, the majority of the merchants, shippers, manufacturers, bondholders, land speculators, lawyers, and ministers were for ratification; and a majority of those opposed were small farmers and artisans. John Adams later wrote that the Constitution was "extorted from the grinding necessity of a reluctant people."

The state conventions of Delaware, New Jersey, and Georgia ratified the Constitution unanimously on December 7 and 18, 1787, and January 2, 1788, respectively; those of Pennsylvania and Connecticut by large majorities on December 12, 1787, and January 9, 1788. In Massachusetts the convention was the scene of an intense conflict, in which a majority of the 355 delegates, led in part by Samuel Adams, were opposed to ratification. Only after supporters of the Constitution suggested that, after ratification, Massachusetts propose to the other states that the Constitution be amended to include a bill of rights were they able, on February 6, 1788, to win by a majority of 19 votes.

Maryland and South Carolina ratified the Constitution by large majorities on, respectively, April 28 and May 23, 1788. On June 21, 1788, New Hampshire became the ninth state to ratify the Constitution, completing the necessary two-thirds majority.

A struggle in the Virginia convention found Patrick Henry and James Monroe expounding their belief that the Constitution was undemocratic, and James Madison and John Marshall vigorously supporting ratification. The latter two finally won a majority of 10 votes out of a total of 168 on June 26, 1788.

In New York, Alexander Hamilton, although not fully satisfied with the Constitution as drafted, led the fight for its ratification. An important element of his campaign was the publication of The Federalist, in which, with the help of James Madison and John Jay, he expounded his view of government. Only after threatening to detach New York City from the rest of the state was he able to win a majority of 3 votes out of a total of 57 on July 26, 1788.

North Carolina rejected the Constitution in 1788, but ratified it on November 21, 1789, when the U.S. government had already been established. Rhode Island was induced to ratify the Constitution (May 29, 1790) by a threat, made by Congress, to regard it as a foreign nation and to impose duties on its exports to the other states.

As a new subscriber, I congratulate you on what I view as a very worthwhile publication. Editor Devlin's "Britain Enacts Loss Of Privacy Bill" was especially perceptive. I suspect however, there are other less known reasons for the continued occupation of Northern Ireland.

For decades the true rulers of England have been a cabal of international Bankers, particularly the House of Rothschild. The six counties of Northern Ireland, for all their problems, represent Irelands most prosperous. I strongly suspect corporation ownership, tariff advantages, tax revenues and other financial considerations are the overriding issue.

The cost of maintaining the lowly paid garrison is not that much of a burden. Wealth that should go to the coffers of Dublin, continue to go to the coffers of London. Yours Truly;

The Curse of Gambling: With greater pressures on individuals and cities to bring in greater revenues, the highly financed gambling lobbies have found it easy to sway politicians to their cause across the nation.

Their promises of more jobs and money for schools however are deceiving, and it is time the truth is made a little clearer. In virtually every area where gambling has been introduced, organized crime has entered the scene, and surrounding communities have deteriorated.

For every dollar raised for schools, it has taken at least a dollar and a half in more police and services to cover the problems introduced. As a typical example we have Atlantic City to go by. It is now called the 'slum by the sea', and the crime rate quadrupled very quickly once the casinos were in place. 90% of the businesses left in the 1st decade and it now looks like a slum a short distance from the casinos.

At least 15 million Americans are now hooked on gambling and only a tiny percentage of individuals profit, and these are usually criminals. Gambling is a business where manipulators separate the weak from their money through the trap of greed.

This something for nothing compulsion was mentioned as coverness in the good book and advised against in the last Commandment. Like other compulsions, gambling brings on a temporary 'high' which is used by the 'dark side' or domination factions to further control and enslave the weakened addicts.

With our Creator allowing us free choice in all our actions and thoughts, we can get caught up in any form of enslavement or suicide we wish. At this stage of the game the futility of vices like gambling should be apparent...

Politically Correct History

The word most dangerously associated with loss of freedom in American society today is Politically Correct Speech. PCS is an oxymoron; for by it's definition, PCS perpetrates loss of speech. For a member of society to constantly be on a public vigil as to what he/she can - or cannot say is to be in direct conflict with the First Amendment of the Constitution, which guarantees free speech.

Recently, the Superintendent of Schools of a economically poor, low test-grade district in New Jersey decided the school systems meager finances would best be used by allocating a costly 'review board' to 'search' through all the districts text books and discover if political correctness is being strictly adhered to.

The Superintendent's directive instructed the board to search history and social studies' books for incorrect terms such as Founding Fathers, Forefathers and any pictures of historic times gone by that did not include a black man or woman alongside the Colonial Fathers. All such discoveries were to be noted, so the school system could replace these politically incorrect historic versions with text books reflecting this Superintendents view of American history -facts and truths be damned.

The person responsible for this outrage, a black female administrator named Bernice Venerable, has instituted a totally black curriculum on the district; ignoring the fact 30% of the students are white. The result of her politically correct curriculum? During the past five years of her tenure, the district's overall SAT test scores have declined to the lowest in the state. This should not be surprising, as this districts students are being brainwashed daily with historic and social subjects of inaccuracies and make believes. Once confronted with SAT questions in conflict with their politically correct teachings, failure is assured.

Commander Kenneth Ballinghoff of the Camden County Militia instruct all who will listen to only read American history from books printed pre-1940.

While my son and daughter were in high school, I eagerly offered to help them with their History assignments, having been an avid reader and follower of history throughout my life. My daughter asked answers to ten questions regarding historic individuals from her textbook; stunningly, I could not recognize even one name she mentioned! I had never heard of these historic figures!

Not one mention was ever made of our country's Constitutional Fathers, or important figures that have created or changed American history. All the historic people named in that history book had to do with social, race and gender change. Have you looked into your child's history book lately!

A friend of mine, who heads the police and security department of a Northeastern college campus told me the Dept. spends 70% of it's time investigating hate speech crimes, and he is sick of it. While drugs flourish on the campus, auto's are broken into and stolen, his Department is almost entirely mired down in investigating hate speech writing on the bathroom walls. Our Cops today have become no more than politically incorrect hate speech investigators, while drug-using criminals roam at will terrorizing the public.

A Special Letter From The Publisher To Colony News Readers

In the next month or two, Colony News readers will notice some dramatic changes in the format of our publication. Beginning with July's Edition, Colony News will assume more of a magazine look, with a bound front and back page cover.

Also, readers may notice a change in publishers. Michael Devlin, Founder and Senior Editor, will assume full responsibility for publishing Colony News. Our fine Editor, Patrick Dublin, will continue to lend his investigative and journalistic abilities to Colony News.

Former publisher Wes Sokotoski, and assistant publisher Jon Sokol, will no longer be affiliated with Colony News. I, as Founder, did not feel these gentlemen were dedicated to the cause of Patriotism sufficiently enough to warrant further association with a Serious Patriotic publication such as Colony News.

Stan Rogers will now assume the position of production and computer design. Stan is a fine young man of strong Patriotic persuasion. Young men of his caliber will be the future of tomorrow's Patriotic movement in America. We welcome Stan.

Editorially, and article wise, Colony News has, since it's inception, chosen to play a somewhat reserved role in its content. This will no longer be the case. Our government is out of control - raping it's citizens in as many ways as is possible. Colony News will assert a more proactive role in exposing bad government and will lead the charge in promoting change of a substantive nature.

While viewing the televised program 'Ruby Ridge-An American Tragedy,' as many of our readers may have; I sat motionless, tears in my eyes at first - then replaced by unmitigated anger. The Weavers were right; given the smallest of excuse the ZOG WILL take you, and your family's life.

The reminder of Ruby Ridge and Waco should wake up all Patriots. The Colonists were outnumbered and afraid - yet they welled up the courage to stand up for liberty and freedom.

We at Colony News greatly thank and appreciate our readers nationwide. In just 9 short months, Colony News has attained subscribers in 49 states. Our growth is consistent and strong. Thank YOU for making this possible. We leave you with our dedicated charter:

Kenneth R. Woodcock, General
Member, National General Staff (USFM)

Mr. Patrick Dublin, Editor
Colony Press-Colony News
Trenton, NJ

Dear Sir:

I just returned to Alabama following our quarterly National General Staff meeting in Pennsylvania. Too bad you didn't know about that one Mr. Dees! Too busy in bed with your own kind, maybe? Patrick, the most discussed topic of the meeting was "how will the new anti-terrorist laws affect the USFM and the other militias?

Every government that finds itself in a tyrannical power position against its own citizens, resorts to these "kinds" of laws to control the general populous. They have to keep the citizens scared but entertained with a "let them eat cake" and throw them some bread once in a while attitude. The present national government, both Democrats and Republicans are fine tuned as to how that is done. You are hard pressed to find just one of them that truly, genuinely gives a damn about the American citizen's rights. Oh yes, they will blow smoke up your ---, and pat you on the back, and tell you how good it is that you're "patriotic" and all. Then, the moment your back is turned, they want you in federal prison or dead. Whichever works out best for them.

History is destined to repeat itself. Don't these educated fools in government ever read about history? Are they so confident and blind that they feel they can ignore the people indefinitely? Are they that secure in their folly? It would seem so. Why? The answer is simple, Patrick. They haven't yet put enough pressure on the American people. They are still in the "let them eat cake" and throw them some bread phase. King George and his problems with the Colonist didn't just build up overnight. It took years of abuse by the King's men, his laws, his taxation, and his blind disregard for the most trivial needs and basic rights of the Americans.

Patrick, what is it going to take to wake the giant that is in every American citizen? America, what is it going to take to bring out the best in you... your patriotic side and support for FREEDOM, out in the open? Maybe it will take the full loss of ALL your rights. Your rights to buy bass boats, fancy pickup trucks, and fast cars. Maybe your rights to attend the International Olympic games? Or, to go to baseball games, football games, basketball games. Or to a good soccer game? Maybe for you vets it will take the right to go to your VFW or Legion halls to discuss what is wrong with your country!

Maybe it will mean being forced to purchase a lap-top computer for your children still in school, so they can watch how to place a condom on in living color! Or, maybe look at the private parts of a young girl so at age 7-8-9-10 they will know the "biological" necessities of life for later use when they are, say, 12-13-14! Just maybe it is going to take FULL TERM DELIVERED OUT OF BODY ABORTIONS! There's that STUPID WORD again. Take any human, plunge a pair of sharp scissors into the base of his/her skull, push in a suction catheter, and suck out the brain...and this is not murder? Would someone please tell this naïve ex-medical emergency room person, ex-ten year EMT person, just what exactly it is? This is murdering Americans! This is not preventing pregnancy. This is murdering a fully developed, alive, breathing, now bleeding and hurting AMERICAN CITIZEN!

If this 90% out of body killing of innocent babies is not murder, then Mr. President, if we find your head stuck in some woman's -----, can we then plunge a sharp scissors into your head, put in a suction catheter, suck out the fat, cowardly brain of yours...and call it ABORTION, not murder? Oh, there is one major difference...you are not innocent!

What is it going to take America? The dead bodies of the militia and Patriots lying in the streets being shown on TV as "news breaks" between time outs of the ball games? Or, when they come for your new BMW because the local official needs it more than you do? Maybe when "they" cancel all your credit cards but still demand full payment or else?

Well Patrick, what's it going to take Sir? I attended the meeting this past April in Shepherdsville, KY. I sat there, looking at many good men, loyal American Patriots, and several things crossed my mind. I wonder what General George Washington would have to say concerning these good men? I wondered how many of them would still be out of prison or for that matter even alive this time next year? Or the Next? I wondered what went through the minds of Washington's men at Valley Forge as they slowly tore off the frozen toes from their feet? I wondered if Valley Forge was really any more important than this meeting?

I prayed for those men and myself. Not because I felt scared or worried, but because I was actually present among the greatest Patriots in the land! It made no difference which militia they belonged to. Which great state they had come from. This was AMERICAN HISTORY taking place, unfolding right before my eyes! And I was a part of it! How blessed I was to be there, almost overwhelms me yet today. I have sat in Independence Hall, looking over the room, the very tables and chairs they used there. I tried to catch a faint sound of one of those great Patriot's voices, saying, WE WILL BE FREE! WE WILL NOT BE SLAVES TO AN UNCARING KING AND HIS LAWS! I never heard the voices I was seeking there in Independence Hall until April of 1996...220 years later! Those words were spoken not in Independence Hall but rather in a VFW Hall, in little old Shepherdsville! General Washington would have been proud.

I would like to thank General David Rydel of the Michigan Militia for inviting me to such a HISTORICAL EVENT and allowing me to see AMERICAN HISTORY in the making. What a grand honor it was.

Recently I saw our murderous, coward'n'chief Clinton veto the bill to prevent partial birth 90% out of body murder of American Citizens. I just wanted to vomit all over him and his desk. What a devil in a man's body. He is sickening and unworthy of the contents of my stomach.

As a commander in the USFM, Patriotic Americans all, I wonder just how the Feds will use their latest bag of dirty laws against American citizens? Every militiaman must wonder. However Patrick, remember this... the loyal American Colonist were out numbered, out gunned, and "out-lawed" too, for awhile. But they began to kick ass and take names because the country united into a citizen's force that no power on earth could stop. And that Patrick is the answer yet to this day. When enough Americans get fed up, the government will go DOWN!

I thought American History was a required subject in school as I remember? Maybe the politicians didn't feel good and skipped school those days! Or, maybe all of them were very "hyperactive with an attention deficient disorder" and were too busy bouncing off the walls! Whatever America.

Sincerely

Kenneth R. Woodcock
